HEAVEN: A Joyful Place

Synopsis

* NEW grammar editing and additional content as of December 4, 2015. Ed's experience was not a near-death experience, (NDE)! It was a real visit to Heaven, (Yes, Heaven IS a real place!) and NOT some mythical place. He wanted to write a story about Heaven and so he prayed to God and asked to visit Heaven, (Write what you know). God answered that prayer. He learned that everything in Heaven makes music... everything makes a joyful noise unto the Lord. Heaven is a joyful place. Come and follow Ed as he describes the fantastic things he saw, heard, felt, and smelled. Come on!! Dear Prospective Reader: After reading this delightful travelog in Heaven, would you be so kind as to return here and write a Review? Please.

It was a torrential rainstorm when author Ed Gaulden, in his study of heaven asked the Lord to show him glimpses, that his prayers were to be answered. Today he shares in his revised 1991 edition the experiences of what he saw and how the Lord wanted him to express it in words. In his dream God let him see a one-dimensional view of his future mansion in heaven. He states in the book "No human language is able to handle a description of heaven and neither can we understand the infinite love of God toward us". While he sat up in bed his soul and spirit traveled while his body lay in quiet slumber. He had the sensation of flying while being inside a walled tunnel made of brilliant stars. Moreover, he indicates that heaven is inside a transparent golden sphere where God's house resides. Through the sphere was beautiful spring-green land. Light originates from a cube-shaped city he states, within the beautiful crystal bubble. In Paradise he found himself standing on a vast green plain with trees growing and colorful flowers. The angel would point to a country home that would be his mansion some day surrounded by beautiful flower gardens and a stream. As he was led underwater he found he could breathe. Shortly afterward he would return to earth. This gives the reader a taste for their eternal home and an awe for the beauty to behold that awaits all who trust in Him. If you find your heart not right with the Lord there is a sinners prayer at the end of the book.

This is such an uplifting writing! It reminded me of descriptions of heaven my grandfather would tell me when I was a child. As an adult, I wondered where he got his information. This is the first place I have found some of the very same things he talked about. Of course there are many others that he didn't. I will read this short piece again for I am sure there are details I need to revisit. Let this speak to your soul and help you find peace!

I love reading accounts of Heaven. I have little doubt this man experienced it. However, he did not see or experience Hell; yet, he writes with 100% belief that it is as real. He also uses his book to proselytize born again Christianity, in the last few pages, as an only means into Heaven although Jesus did not tell him this in his experience. So, his own beliefs colored his story quite a bit. Although his writing style was adequate, many, many words were missing as if he may not have been an English speaking person (?). It should have been much better proofread.

The author did an incredible job describing heaven even with a limited vocabulary. I.E.; "Other colors dazzled. Colors I have never seen. These new colors were indescribable! The city sparkled like a pure cut crystal diamond. Bright and shiny are such dull words! Simply put, the golden city glowed with a precious beauty. It gleamed and glittered within the gold sphere".

This book is a feel good book. I really did enjoy reading it. I find for me anyway, that people who have experienced near death experience to be more logical instead of seeing heaven in a dream. Still, I thought it to be a good book that lifts the spirit.

I found it very interesting that the descriptions in this book closely align with many of the paintings that Akiane Kramarik has painted of Heaven. Just like her painting of Jesus perfectly represented Jesus, as seen and described by Colton Burpo in "Heaven is for Real". I can't wait to get there! A thoroughly enjoyable book!

I wasn't totally convinced whether this was a "dream" or a "vision" or just rhetoric from other NDE experiences. It was nice and one could hope that this author's vision had truth about some of the glory of Heaven.

Ed, I hate to be a party pooper, but your book was rather contrived...too biblical. Don't you think there's a lot about heaven that isn't actually in the Bible. Whatever wasn't exactly Biblical feels like it was lifted from someone else's NDE. It drives me nuts when people have a clear agenda. Jesus doesn't like it when you lie, Ed, and making money from lies, that's the worst sort of Priestcraft.
