Synopsis

A positive crimewave has descended on Miss Seeton's peaceful home village of Plummergen. There's the Sherry Gang, who go round offering to help old folk with their shopping then ply them with drugged booze and rob them. And a return to olden times with the Dick Turpin robberies - coaches of people held up on the highway and told to "Stand and deliver!" When the Battling Brolly tries to help the police by creating some of her famous sketches she seems to hint at a connection between the gangs - but what? If only Chief Superintendent Delphick can work out the subconscious clue behind Miss Ess's cryptic cartoons. Serene amidst every kind of skullduggery, this eccentric English spinster steps in where Scotland Yard stumbles, armed with nothing more than her sketchpad and umbrella!

Customer Reviews

Around the village of Plummergen, there are two gangs of criminals who are being very successful. The Sherry Gang focuses on an elderly person struggling with shopping bundles. A kind and thoughtful person offers to help carry the bundles home. Then the elderly person is drugged by a glass of sherry and their home is ransacked. Anything of value is taken as their victim sleeps. The Dick Turpin Gang is stopping tourist coaches and ordering the passengers to stand and Deliver. Each passenger is robbed of anything portable – jewelry, cash, credit cards. Then the gang disappears. A strange coincidence is that both gangs seem to be made up of one man and two women. The second coincidence is that the police are having no luck at all in finding any of these criminals. When Miss Seeton is asked to speak to a victim of the Sherry Gang and do one of her magical drawings, the result apparently has no connection to anything. After Miss Seeton is a victim of the Dick Turpin Gang, the police ask her to do a drawing. Again, it appears that what she sees with her sixth sense seems to have nothing to do with the people robbing tourists. Scotland Yard and the local police are afraid Miss Seeton is becoming unable to use her talent anymore. After all, she is getting older. This is a wonderful story. The plot is well done and there are good ongoing mysteries. The characters as always make the story. Of course we meet Miss Seeton. She is a wonderful woman who seems to be just a wee bit absent minded. Her thought processes never seem to go in a straight line. And she certainly does not seem to see what is actually happening around her. Oblivious is her middle name. The villagers and the police add wonderful depth to the story.
