Thaddeus Murfee (Thaddeus Murfee Legal Thrillers Book 1)

Synopsis

What if your boss wanted you to spy...on the U.S. government? There is no job description and the job isn't advertised anywhere, not even on the Job Board at Georgetown Law. But Thaddeus Murfee just graduated from law school and has $200 left from his student loan. He is so broke he has to borrow his roommate's suit for his first job interview. While he is so desperate to earn rent and food money, he fails to nail down exactly what it is he'll be doing. They tell him a U.S. Attorney is selling government secrets...But is he, really? Thaddeus Murfee likes his new boss, the U.S. Attorney. Good things happen and gifts flow his way. What's not to like? The government lawyer even has a daughter he wants Thaddeus to meet. Were the people who hired him just totally wrong about the guy selling government secrets? What proof do they actually have of this serious accusation? Meet the foreign agents who will pay top dollar for U.S. war plans...This thrilling collection of good-lawyers/bad-lawyers will keep you up late at night. Beware: you might show up late for work. But when you get to work you just might find everyone talking about this new, exciting romp through the backstreets of Washington, D.C. On one side, a new, innocent lawyer just out of school. On the other side, the full force and might of the U.S. government. Watch from your front-row seat as it plays out and careers are built and ruined while lives are won and lost. Buy Thaddeus Murfee today before it becomes a movie in 2017!

Customer Reviews

This is a newly-published prequel to a whole series of courtroom thrillers about a Midwestern trial lawyer, Thaddeus Murphee. This one recounts how he, a brand-new graduate of Georgetown University Law School in Washington, D.C., came to establish his practice in the little town of Orbit, in downstate Illinois. It is by nature a convoluted tale, and is based on the rather far-fetched premise that Thad, who finished third in his class, has graduated without even the hint of a job. This, in a city infested with high-voltage law firms. He is finally recruited by the U. S. Attorney's Office in the Department of Justice to become a sort of gatekeeper for a veteran career officer, the better to spy on his activities. There is a suspicion that he is delivering information to the Chinese government. The ins and outs of the plot are too many to outline here, but Mr. Ellsworth seems not to have done much homework on the nitty-gritty of Civil Service employment. Thad's beginning salary is almost congressional, an appalling prospect, and not long afterward it is almost doubled by one of the departmental investigators to whom he is reporting. To this old civil servant, we are in the Land of Oz. Ultimately, Thad, still a complete tyro, finds himself in court, defending his boss against a charge of treason. He is thoroughly worked over by a vindictive judge, but he is not only being advised by his own lawyer, a veteran litigator, but gets some vital support from a surprising source. He emerges triumphant, but is so disgusted by the experience that he decides to leave the government altogether. He unfolds a large map of the U.S., closes his eyes, and drops a finger on Orbit, Illinois. He is on his way.
