This book has been a blessing to me several times when discouraged. It contains brief bio's of different pastors from the past. Not just well known ones like Spurgeon & Maclaren, but some ones who are obscure today but were well known in their own times. Like Charles Jefferson, J D Jones, etc. My only beef is that he has largely limited his selection to Anglo preachers. He has missed many international preachers, African American ones, etc. The bios are short & to the point. They do not gloss over weak points but the focus is on positive. The second part of the book deals with various classic texts on preaching. Most of us will never be able to read these books, but Wiersbe provides us with "executive summaries" of the high points of these classic texts! Buy this one, keep it by your bed stand for a "pick me up" and also to sharpen your gifts. It is a heart warming read.

I found this book to be very similar to 50 People Every Christian Should Know. Actually preferred "50 People", but both are excellent. Many of the great treasures of the Christian pulpit are all but lost to our current crop of preachers. Too bad. These books will stir the hungry heart for those wanting great preaching and Warren Wiersbe has a gift for cultivating your appetite for such. Do yourself a favor and get these books for your learning, your stirring and your spiritual renewal.

Dated but if you are wondering about some of the older men who you often hear quoted and would like to have a brief overview of their lives along with a choice sermon from each it is a great read. Also for you preachers there are some good illustrations to glean.

Every Pastor should read this book. It gives much needed guidance in the way of giants of the faith to read about. It would be great for lay people as well to expand your faith & understanding of church history!

Already finished reading this book. Very good, can't wait to share. A must read for Pastors or anyone interested in this kind of book.
